

Flintknapping

Saturday, August 3
10:00 AM-1:00 PM

Flint knapping is the process of making stone tools (i.e. arrowheads, projectile points, hand axes, etc.). The ancient art of flintknapping has been around for about two million years. Only a few small groups of people in remote parts of the world still knap as part of their daily lives.

Join Dr. Gregory Pryor at the Environmental Discovery Center for flintknapping demonstrations beginning at 10:00 AM until 1:00 PM.

Registration is not required for this event.
